

Dear Friends,

Spring is definitely in the air. We had a blessed winter season of rest and now we are ready to get back to work for you.

We want you to know that we appreciate your business and whether you come to the farm, shop at the Grapevine Farmers Market or pick up from our Fort Worth Co-op drop location we are looking forward to serving you this year.

Grapevine Farmers Market dates will change to an every other week schedule due to the distance. We will have these dates on our web site soon, and we will send reminders by email to keep you informed.

Our Fort Worth Co-op Delivery dates will continue as an every other week schedule due to the fact that the City of Fort Worth regulations prevent us from selling our products at the Cowtown Farmers Market on the Benbrook traffic circle. We are still looking for other options to make it possible to bring our meats to the actual market location. For now we will continue with the Co-op Delivery.

Cody's pork project (sounds political) was a success, so this year he is going HOG WILD so to speak. We are currently searching for a nearby location that has the capability to cure meats for hams and bacons.

We have changed the look of our order form; however, we have not changed the price of our products.

Speaking about changes. . . Katelyn graduated High School last year and is currently a stay at home daughter refining her baking, music and gardening skills, Cody will be graduating High School this May and Karah is in her first year of homeschooling.

We know that our customers are informed consumers; however if you get the chance to watch a good movie any time soon, check out "Food, Inc." It will keep you ever mindful about the food your family eats.

We look forward to serving you and your family.

Allen and Kim Boone
